Labor Day Golf at Manchester in Spite of the Rain

After Morning Drizzle, Clearing Skies Make Holiday Tournament Possible.

Special Dispatch to THE NEW YORK HERALD. MANCHESTER IN THE MOUNTAINS, Vt., Sept. 9.—The Labor Day holiday crowd of pleasure seekers taxed accommodations at Manchester to the limit and there was much pleasant anticipation of the annual Labor Day golf handicap to be played at Ekwonok Country Club. Monday morning, however, the spirits of many were dampened when the rain came down in a continuous, heavy drizzle, that at times amounted to a real shower. A few brave golfers could not be kept within doors and a few played during the rain. Fair weather prevailed in the afternoon, and about 100 players started in the event, which resulted in a triple tie. D. E. Sawyer, the Swaney star, made his first visit to Ekwonok last Saturday, and captured the gross prize in the medal handicap competition being played that day.

The Manchester Fall comes next week and the summer visitor will have opportunity to see all varieties of his country cousins in the latter's native element. Incidentally, it is quite a fair, and the horse races will furnish real amusement. The purses for races total $3,500, a large amount for the small country fair.
